had to himself in reading the astounding news of this aforesaid awful conspiracy. The vaga-bond Bohemian inventing it is utterly unworthy of credence, and the provincial editor whom he serves is a conceited and disappointed politician, still smarting from the remembrance that, although poor Pierce elevated him to a foreign mission, Mr. Buchanan found it expedient to dispense with his services.

A GRAND NATIONAL COMMITTEE OF PEACE MAKERS .- The Richmond (Va.) Whig (Union organ) proposes that the sectional difficulties between the North and the South on the slavery question be submitted to a board of arbitrators selected from the most distinguished men of the country, and names for this business ex-Presidents Van Buren, Tyler, Pierce and Fillmore, and late Presidential candidates Fremont, Bell and Breckinridge, together with Chief Justice Taney and Lieutenant General Scott. These distinguished men, the Whig calls upon Congress, or the States, or the people, to summon together as a Grand Amphictyonic Council. "to consult upon the common good and common safety of the republic."

This committee, we submit, is not the remedy for the crisis. The first man indicated, Martin Van Buren, is about the last man to act as a peacemaker with the South. Never anything higher than an intriguing politician, his bit of personal revenge against General Cass and the democratic party in 1848 laid the foundations of the present victorious republican organization of the North; for the Van Buren free soil platform of 1848 and the Chicago platform of 1860 are substantially the same thing. John Tyler made a respectable President, though left without a party to back him except his office holders; but his day has gone by. Mr. Fillmore has been too deeply mixed up in party broils to be useful as a pacificator of sectional disputes. Poor Pierce, together with Douglas, Jefferson Davis, Cushing and others, in 1854, opened the box of Pandors which has brought all these existing troubles upon the country. Poor Pierce must be set aside. Fremont is too busy with his California gold mines to be thought of for political purposes. Let the Pathfinder remain where he is. Chief Justice Taney is out of the question as a compromiser. His business is justice and the law. Gen. Scott cannot be spared from his duties as the active head of the army; and so we dispose of this grand national committee of our Richmond

The man for this crisis is the President elect of the United States. The President in power has exhausted his resources as a peacemaker; Congress sticks fast in the "slough of despond." Abraham Linceln, charged with the responsibilities of the incoming administration. is the man for these times, if he will only lift himself up to the necessities of the day. The anointed head and front, embodiment and expounder, dictator and administrator of the republican party, Mr. Lincoln is the man of all men qualified, from his position and his responsibilities, to save this country from destruction Let him come forward, in good faith and in a broad and liberal spirit as a peacemaker, and we shall have peace. Let him persist in hold-ing back, and all the efforts of all other men to save the Union will most probably end in civil

DRC. 28.—The United States of America, Moses Kelly, Proc. 25.—The United States of America, Mose Kelly, Chief Clerk of the Department of the Interior, and Secretary Thompson, Chief of that Department, vs. Jerome B. Simpson, Vice President of the Overland Peny Repres Co., Thompson Brothers, Clark, Dodge & Co., Godard Builey, Clerk in the Department of the Interior, Russell, Majore & Waddell, and Richard Schell.—In this case Mr. M. V. B. Wilcomson, Assistant United States Atternay, moved for injunctions against the above named defend-ants, restraining them from selling, parting with or hypothecating any of the stolen Indian Trust bonds which hypothecating any of the stolen in har Trust bonds which they may have in their possession. The bill of complaint contains the same charges as those contained in that al-ready filed against the Bank of the Republic and others. It sets forth and alleges that such bonds were deposited in a certain safe in the building occupied by the Depart-ment of the Interior, which safe was under the immediment of the Interior, which safe was under the immediate care and custody of Goddard Bailey as disbursing clerk in said department, who was entrusted with the care and custody of the key of the safe. It further alleges as a fact that the said Bailey, combining and confederating with Russell, Majors & Waddell, to rob the United States, abstracted the bonds from the safe and placed them in possession of Russell, Majors & Waddell, as appears from the following receipt of Russell, Majors & Waddell to Bailey:
